THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT THIS CARD

How We Will Calculate Balances: We use a method called "average daily balance" (including new transactions). See "How Do You Calculate the Interest Charge?" below for more details.

How Do You Calculate The Interest Charges? We use a method called "average daily balance (including new transactions)". Under this method, we first calculate the daily balance of your account during the billing period for each interest charge segment (transactions that share the same interest rate are placed into the same interest charge segment). This is calculated as follows:

- (1) take the beginning balance of each interest charge segment each day;
- (2) add any new transactions made during that day to the applicable interest charge segment; and
- (3) subtract any payments or credits to the applicable interest charge segment that occur that day.

The result is the daily balance for each interest charge segment. For certainty, any transactions that are subject to a grace period are not added to the daily balance of the applicable interest charge segment.

We then calculate your average daily balance for each interest charge segment as follows:

- (1) add the daily balances for each interest charge segment together to get the total balance for each interest charge segment during the billing period; and
- (2) divide the total balance for each interest charge segment by the number of days in the applicable billing period.

At the end of each billing period, we calculate your total interest charge as follows:

- (1) multiply the average daily balance for each interest charge segment by the daily periodic interest rate (calculated by taking the annual interest rate applicable to each interest charge segment divided by 365);
- (2) multiply the resulting number for each interest charge segment by the number of days in the billing period (which results in the total interest charge for each interest charge segment); and
- (3) add together the total interest charge for each interest charge segment to get the total interest charge on your account for the billing period.

When the default rate applies, it is calculated in the same manner described above, except that all transactions will be subject to the default interest rate. NOTE: due to rounding or a minimum interest charge, this calculation may vary from the interest charge actually assessed.

Can Plastk Change My Account Terms? We can change the terms of your account as permitted by law. When required by law, we will send you notice before changing the terms of your account and you will be given 30 days before the new terms take effect to decide whether you want to refuse the change(s) and close your account.

How Can I Avoid Paying Interest Charges? If you pay your statement's "New Balance" in full by the due date, we will not charge interest on any new transactions that post to the Purchase balance. If you have been paying your account in full with no interest charges, but then you do not pay your next "New Balance" in full, we will charge interest on the portion of the balance that you did not pay.

For cash advances and special balance transfers, you will not be charged interest only if you pay the full balance of these items within the three (3) day grace-period applicable to these types of transactions.

How Is The Interest Charge Applied? Interest charges accrue on every unpaid amount until it is paid in full. This means you may owe interest charges even if you pay the entire "New Balance" one month, but did not do so for the previous month. Unpaid interest charges are added to the proper segment of your account. However, we reserve the right to not assess interest charges at any time.
